With the iLearn Assessment, CIESC presents the learning opportunity to prepare for the assessment with colleagues in the field. In this ever changing world, the demands and need for collaborative, creative problem solvers increases. Do our classrooms of today prepare students for anything and everything? Are we developing students capable of becoming their own teachers? With so much attention paid to student performance and school achievement, it is imperative to engage and empower teachers and students in deeper learning and help everyone find success in school and beyond. In this workshop, we will take a deeper dive into self-assessment and helping all students find success and guide their own learning.

Workshop Agenda:

- Examine the research encouraging deeper thinking and learning with real-world examples
- Discover a variety of tools to help support student learning, ownership, and efficacy
- Shifting from culture of fears to opportunities
- Investigate and apply learning strategies to your curriculum guides, units, and lessons

Presenters:

Laurie Ferry,

CIESC Director of Professional Learning

Duke Lines,

CIESC Innovation Learning Specialist
