As two passionate educators who believe deeply in providing real-world learning by igniting student voice and choice in and out of the classroom, we will share strategies for bringing learning experiences to life in the high ability classroom. Come learn how students can research, engage with members of the community, and spark authentic student driven change in the world around them. Students invested in their learning maintain a higher level of cognitive engagement, so join us to gain strategies to harness students interests and voices to spark learning that is purposeful and relevant!

Workshop Agenda

- Discover the power of student-led learning to deepen and enrich student understanding and ownership.
- Embed cross curricular experiences into practice to enhance learning for all, foster environments that create digital producers, and facilitate community interaction.
- Leave with a clear starting point to create rich and relevant learning experiences that empower your students.

Register

Erin Mohr, HSE High Ability Coordinator and Brooke Daniel, HSE Teacher

- Experienced elementary teachers and professional development leaders
- Presented at local, state, and international conferences
- Passionate about authentic and relevant work that ignites student interest
